

Command And General Staff College Foundation, Inc.

2007 ANNUAL REPORT

The Command and General Staff College has, for over 126 years, done a magnificent job of educating commanders and staff officers to lead America's sons and daughters in peace and war. In so doing, it has become one of our military's most respected centers of professional military study and inquiry. In recent years, in particular, it has served as one of our Army's most important agents of change as our military has adapted to the demands of wars very different from those on which we had focused our training and education. The CGSC is, in short, a true national asset, one that has served our Nation and our Army exceedingly well.

FROM THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

MY ASSESSMENT

by Bob Ulin, CEO

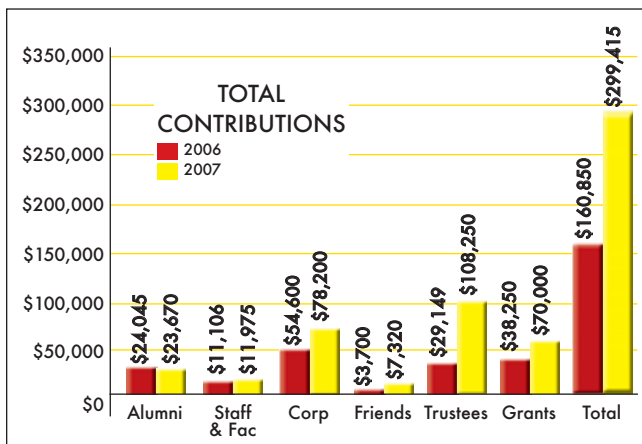

The U.S. Army Command and General Staff College develops creative, innovative and adaptive leaders. Your Foundation leadership team has adopted these same traits in the development of our organization. We closed out 2007 with $1.2 million in cash, pledges and estate gifts.

Clearly, 2007 was a banner year for our Foundation. We moved into our new offices in the Lewis and Clark Center, completed our first full year of operation, and nearly doubled our revenues. We also increased funding provided to the College for direct program support moving from $9,500 in 2006, to $16,900 in 2007. We recently granted the College $42,000 for 2008. Indirect support in the form of promotional materials and activities to fulfill our outreach mission nearly doubles the total amount of funding provided.

Organizationally, we strengthened our board by attracting senior business executives and retired military leaders from across the country, developed policies and procedures for fund raising and formed a capital campaign steering committee with regional co-chairs to extend our reach and influence across the country. To keep pace with this growth, we hired Ms. Tracy Pennington, who serves as our business manager and we retained Lt. Col. Mark Wiggins (USA Ret.) to serve as our part-time communications director. Mark is the Managing Editor of our magazine, runs our web site, develops our press releases, and advises on communications strategy.

At the very heart of our success is a wonderful group of donors who have entrusted us to be good stewards of their money. We remain dedicated to the objective of building an endowment over the next few years that will generate sufficient funds for meaningful and sustainable programs and activities for the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College to fulfill their mission of providing leaders capable of meeting the challenges of 21st century.

COL (R) Robert R. Ulin

The mission of the CGSC Foundation is to support CGSC in educating leaders for the 21st century in the following six mission areas:

Enrich the College's academic environment

This mission area was met by supporting the development of a campaign to fund several academic chairs for distinguished visiting professors. Former Secretary of State, retired General Colin L. Powell agreed to lend his name for the development of Colin L. Powell academic chair and lecture series. The foundation is a sponsor of the bi-annual Eagle-Owl Sports competition between CGSC and the Joint Services Command and Staff College of the British Army.

Foster a strong relationship between the military and the private sector

The Foundation developed a national security roundtable program along with the College to support community outreach, help civilian business leaders better understand the broad education provided for our students and educate these key business leaders about areas of interest in national security. The annual Foundation dinner is another mechanism for the Foundation to help tell the Army's story to a distinguished group of American citizens.

Enhance the institution's research activities

The Foundation supported symposia on Warfare in the Age of Non-State Actors and an Academic Needs Analysis for a master's degree program in Homeland Security in cooperation with Kansas State University.

Promote leader development

The sum total of the programs and activities undertaken by the Foundation supports and promotes leader development. The Foundation has developed memoranda of understanding with local universities to explore ways to develop cooperative programs and supports interagency cooperation by creating a Distinguished Visiting Professor of Foreign Policy program with DACOR—the Diplomatic and Consular Officers Retired organization in Washington, D.C.

Encourage excellence in the faculty and the student body

The Foundation supports the College's awards program by providing recognition for excellence in tactics, logistics, the best master's thesis, the military instructor of the year, and the civilian instructor of the year.

Maintain contact with alumni

The Foundation publishes the CGSC Foundation News twice annually to report news about the College and the activities and programs supported by the Foundation. This magazine also serves to reconnect former graduates with their College and to educate civilian community and business leaders of the programs and activities of the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College.
